

WARNS CROYDONITE NEVER TO GET BACK INTO COURT AGAIN

Judge Keller Tells Frank J. Crosley He Had Better Get Out of Liquor Business

MUST PAY A FINE OF $125

Accused of Selling Liquor on Sunday to State Enforcement Officer

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 16—"If you ever get back into court again, it will not be so easy for you," President Judge Hiram H. Keller said yesterday as he addressed a prisoner at the Bar.

"I hope I never see you again," replied the prisoner.

The Court's remarks followed a hearing in the case of Frank J. Crosley, State Road, Bristol, who pleaded guilty to three charges of selling liquor without a license and selling liquor by employee without a license.

On three different occasions, according to Charles Haines, liquor law enforcement agent, liquor and beer were purchased on Sunday at Crosley's place.

Constable Joseph Sedar, of Bristol township, testified for the defendant that he never had any complaints about Crosley's place.

Judge Keller advised Crosley that he had better get out of the liquor business.

The Court sentenced Crosley to pay a fine of $125, in default of which he is to serve three months in the Bucks County Prison, surrender his beer license to the County Treasurer, and pay the costs. On two of the charges sentence was suspended.

This was the first case at the opening of the second week of Bucks county criminal court.

John C. Billings, Jr., 16; John Lear, 21, and Francis Lear, 19, of Brownsburg, pleaded guilty to breaking, entering and larceny. The defendants confessed to three robberies, stealing some household goods, radios, batteries, lumber, jackets, a razor and other things. The places robbed were owned by Summer residents of Jericho Mountains.

John Lear told District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn that he had been arrested three times, and had served three years in Glen Mills Reform School. He also served a six-month enlistment in a "C. C. C." camp, but quit and went home about a year ago, and has not been working since that time. He admitted breaking into a New Hope hardware store on one occasion.

J. Cooper Pidcock, of New Hope, testified that in his opinion, Billings was a victim of bad company, and that if he was given another chance, he would in all probability make good.

"You are no good to yourself or your parents," Judge Keller said to John Lear as he imposed a fine of $1 and costs and a sentence of not less than 18 months nor more than five years in the Bucks County Prison.

"You need a lesson, too," Judge Keller said to Francis Lear, a brother of John Lear, as he sentenced him to an indefinite term in the Huntingdon Reformatory.

"I'm going to give you a chance because I think you can make good," were the Court's remarks to James C. Billings, Jr., who was placed on probation for three years in the custody of J. Cooper Pidcock and Sheriff Horace E. Gwinner as probation officers, prison sentence being suspended.

Judge Keller handed down an opinion in the case of the Hatboro School District against Warminster School District, in the Court of Common Pleas of Bucks County.

The Court ordered:

"The plaintiff's demurrer be and is hereby sustained, and that the Warminster Township School District, the defendant, and its directors and their successors in office do, and they are hereby commanded to make full and ample provision for the payment of its indebtedness to the Hatboro School District, the plaintiff, as evidenced by the aforesaid judgment, and for said purpose to levy, assess and collect, annually, in the manner and at the time, as provided by the Act of Assembly, an additional tax at a rate of not less than 2 mills on the total assessed valuation of all property taxable for school purposes in said district of the township of Warminster, and that the said defendant school district set aside as a fund for the payment of said judgment, such proportion of all the taxes collected, as said additional millage shall bear to the total millage of the annual school tax rate. It is further ordered that the defendant pay the costs of this proceeding."

William F. Dillon, of Philadelphia, was sentenced to two months to two years in the Bucks County Prison by Judge Calvin S. Boyer, after pleading guilty to a charge of driving while drunk. The defendant was implicated in an accident on the Old York Road when several persons were injured.

The usual sentence was imposed by Judge Boyer in the case of Luther VanBillard, of Bethlehem, charged with fornication and bastardy. VanBillard pleaded guilty.

Miss Rita Quigley and Charles Walker, Bath street, spent Sunday visiting in New York City, N. Y.

BRISTOL'S TRAILER COLONY GETS STARTED WITH ONE TRAILER AND ONE PERSON; CONSIDERS TAKING LODGERS AFTER RECEIVING APPLICATIONS

House on Wheels is Neatly and Comfortably Furnished and Well Equipped

OWNER EMPLOYED HERE.

Tells Courier He Adopted The Idea As Economical Move

Bristol has its first trailer colony, or at least, the nucleus of one.

Population: One trailer; one person.

"Come in," was the greeting called from inside as a Courier reporter knocked on the door of the trailer, anxious to be admitted to the house on wheels. It is quite a novelty to knock on the door of a trailer and then step inside into a cozy and well-kept living apartment.

This first inhabitant of what may prove to be for Bristol what trailers have proven to be to other municipalities, is parked opposite the plant of Fleetwings, Incorporated. The trailer has been here one week. This is longer than any trailer has parked in the borough, serving as the home of its owner.

Edward Sherwin, Mullica Hill, N. J., is the owner and sole occupant, or at least was the sole occupant, up to the time of this interview. Sherwin says he has been approached by two persons who have asked for the privilege of rooming with him. Now listen to that you folks who are converting your properties into apartments!

"Are you going to take lodgers?" Sherwin was asked.

"Well, I'm considering the proposition," was his answer.

Sherwin is an employee of the Hall-Aluminum Aircraft Corporation here. He works on the layout and assembly of frames. He arrived here a week ago. After obtaining his job, he selected his site, unhitched the motor car of a friend, who returned to Mullica Hill.

"My buddy comes up for me every other week," says Sherwin.

Sherwin has only owned the trailer three weeks, but thinks it is fine, and justly so. The vehicle, or home on wheels, is warm, neatly arranged inside, and well equipped. There is a refrigerator, running water, gasolene stove for cooking, and coal stove for heating, four sleeping couches, plenty of ventilation, and lots of closet room. There are electric lights.

Sherwin is a licensed transport pilot and hit upon the trailer scheme as an economical proposition. He does his own trailer (or house) work, cooks, and says that he does not mind the loneliness of this sort of life. When visited, Sherwin was found tidying up his home. When his visitor entered, pipes were quickly pushed out of sight, a little dusting was done and closet doors pushed shut, just as any good housekeeper does when someone walks in.

Pope Is All But Well

By Frank Gervasi (Copyrighted by I. N. S.)

Vatican City, Feb. 16—Pope Pius is all but well again and, paradoxically, his serious illness has strengthened him and possibly added years to his life, Dr. Agostino Gemelli, one of his personal physicians, told International News Service in an exclusive interview today.

Word of the Pope's almost sensational recovery spread cheer throughout the Vatican once more in marked contrast with the atmosphere of two months ago when the Pontiff was believed to be dying.

Because of the enforced rest during his illness of more than two months, the Pontiff will enjoy longer life than he otherwise would have had, Dr. Gemelli told this correspondent after he had an hour's talk with the physician.

It was learned the Pope's morale has improved appreciably since he has discovered he can stand on his own feet again and he is confident he will emerge in the near future from the invalid stage and reassume his duties as head of the Church.

"Of course it can not be hoped the Pope can be cured of ailments of such profound and deep-seated character," the physician, life-long friend of the Pope, said, "but he is well on the road to recovery of his physical powers which will enable him to resume fully his high duties of his office." Dr. Gemelli, who had not seen the Pope for several days, was amazed at what he termed "a remarkable turn for the better" in the Pontiff's condition. The priest-physician attributed the improvement to the Pontiff's "amazing spiritual as well as physical stamina."

"I realize," he said, "that the Pope's constitutional condition remains unchanged. The ills which revealed themselves can not be eliminated, but it is a fact the Pope has re-entered into sure dominion of his physical facilities."

Wants $2,250 Yearly Wage

Detroit, Feb. 16 — Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers Union, today declared as he entered the collective bargaining conference with General Motors Corporation that all auto workers should receive $2,250 a year pay.

The bargain conference was under terms of last Thursday's strike settlement agreement which paved the way for re-opening of General Motors plants. About 80,000 workers returned to General Motors plants yesterday, 20,000 returned today and 25,000 others were to be called back by the end of the week, placing General Motors total employment to 235,000. While the back to work parade continued, officials of the Union and General Motors were to bargain over demands, which have been referred to as the worst strike in the history of the years. Two sessions a day were to be held at the conference in General Motors Building here.

SATURDAY MOST DANGEROUS DAY OF THE WEEK TO DRIVE YOUR AUTOMOBILE; 2411 PERSONS WERE KILLED LAST YEAR

Do you know that Saturday is the most dangerous day of the week to drive your automobile? This despite all the talk about the "Sunday driver."

Last year more accidents were reported on Saturday than during any other day of the week, while the fewest accidents occurred on Tuesday. This is revealed by Secretary of Revenue, John B. Kelly, today in a statement issued at Harrisburg.

Although the highest accident hour was between 4 and 5 p. m., the greatest number of accidents of the more serious nature occurred between the hours of 7 and 8 p. m.

Pedestrians struck down on streets and highways accounted for half the deaths caused by motor vehicles in Pennsylvania in 1936, Secretary Kelly declared today.

Figures tabulated in the annual report of the Division of Safety of the Department of Revenue emphasize the fact that a person walking on the highway is the most likely one to receive a fatal injury from an automobile.

The report shows that 1,180 persons died as a result of 12,116 collisions between automobiles and pedestrians while a total of 43,617 automobile accidents of all other types including collisions with street cars, trains and

BARN AND TRUCK LOST IN BLAZE; CHICKS BURN

Loss of $900 is Reported at Langhorne, and $2500 Loss Near Newtown

INCENDIARY IS BLAMED

Fire yesterday destroyed a two-story barn, together with its contents, including an automobile delivery truck, at Langhorne, and 2,000 chicks and 400 hens perished in flames on a farm between Newtown and Washington Crossing.

The barn and truck at S. Langhorne were owned by Mrs. Joseph Clayton, and were located at Crescent and Woodland avenues.

Firemen from two companies, South Langhorne and Langhorne, unable to save the structure due to the headway gained by the flames when the firemen were summoned, bent their efforts toward preventing spread of the fire to nearby homes, the fire station and the old school-house, all of which were near to the burning building.

The loss on the barn, contents, and the truck, is estimated at $900, states Fire Marshal William L. Stackhouse, Hulmeville, who is investigating the cause of the fire.

It was at 12:45 that a group of boys notified Robert Clayton, son of Mrs. Joseph Clayton, that the barn was afire. The two fire companies were notified.

In the barn was also a quantity of material for making lawn benches, and also some tools.

The blaze continued for about three-quarters of an hour.

It is the opinion of officials that the barn was either accidentally set afire or that the blaze was of an incendiary nature.

Two thousand chicks and 400 hens perished in a fire yesterday on the farm of Amos Fred Slater, situated between Newtown and Washington Crossing.

Although the main barn was imperiled, 30 cows as well as horses sheltered within it were not a part of the loss, estimated at $2,500. The flames consumed large and small chicken houses, two brooder houses and 200 bundles of corn fodder.

Passersby observed the flames and notified Fire Chief Charles Urban, at Newtown. The Newtown company responded with two pieces of equipment. A delay due to the lack of a telephone on the Slater farm permitted the flames to gain considerable headway.

Trying to Explain to the Wife

(By "The Stroller")

A Hulmeville man is talking himself blue in the face, trying to explain to his wife in good fashion how he came by a black eye.

It seems that said Hulmeville resident, intent on watching a barn fire at South Langhorne yesterday decided to separate two fighting dogs at about the same time a member of the fair sex came to the same decision. But each had a different method.

As Charlie leaned forward to chase the two mongrels, a woman in the crowd swung a bag containing a thermos bottle, with all her might. She missed hitting the dogs, but struck the other would-be peace-maker square in the left eye.

Apologies were profuse, and were accepted with as good grace as a man in great pain can accept such.

But the embarrassment still remains, for several times a day as Charlie is asked how he received his black eye, he starts to explain. He usually starts out thus: "Well, some woman —," and that is as far as the questioner permits him to proceed.

YOUTH TELLS STORY RESULTING IN THE ARREST OF 6 MEN

State Troopers and Liquor Board Agents Find Huge Still At Coopersburg

500 GALLONS WHISKEY

Largest Still Ever Operated In Bucks County, It Is Believed

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 16—A 19-year old youth walked into the office of a Springtown justice last night and unfolded a story which at first appeared to be fantastic but which upon investigation by State Police and State Liquor Control Board agents resulted in discovery of what is believed to be the largest still ever operated in Bucks County and in the arrest of six men.

It was shortly after 7:30 last night when Mike Szabrae, 19, Durham Township, went to the office of Justice of Peace Stever, Springtown, and told the justice that four men had threatened to kill him and that they had kept him captive in a truck all day between Springtown and Pleasant Valley.

In threatening the youth, it is said that the quartette accused him of stealing a truckload of liquor and told him that he must either return the liquor or give them $500 or else they would "knock him off."

State Police here were called into the case and along with the youth went to a hotel at Pleasant Valley where Szabrae was to meet the men, after he had promised to go and search for the liquor which he was accused of stealing.

At the hotel two men were identified by Szabrae, as being two of the four which had threatened him. They were placed under arrest and gave the names of Herman Innocenzi, 24, Trenton, N. J.; Louis Coleman, 32, Philadelphia. They were charged with surety of peace and illegal possession of liquor.

The State Troopers then summoned agents of State Liquor Control Board, and they visited the farm of Frank Gimmer, 61, Coopersburg, where police say they found the largest moonshine still ever unearthed in Bucks County. Gimmer was placed under arrest and it is said that he is the owner of the farm. Five hundred gallons of whiskey were found and the still today is being dismantled.

Frank Praezko, 16, Bethlehem; Gene Selavi, 32, Trenton, N. J.; and Charles Guzzi, 28, Frankford, were arrested. They were charged with illegal manufacture and possession of whiskey.

ROOSEVELT'S PRESTIGE

As bearing on the probable action of Congress respecting the President's proposal to enlarge the Supreme Court with "new blood," as he put it, the attitude of Senator Ashurst, of Arizona, is particularly enlightening.

Not only his position as chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, but also his previous preoccupation with the Administration's constitutional difficulties and methods for their solution make his views especially pertinent. He is the author of a proposed constitutional amendment, giving Congress outright power to regulate "agriculture, commerce, industry and labor." On several occasions he has stated frankly and explicitly his opinion as to the proper course when Congress finds its legislative power no longer adequate to deal with current problems.

As recently as January 29, he said in the Senate:

"Let me say that I have no sympathy with attempts to whittle or to chisel, by indirection, circumlocution and periphrasis, and 'house-that-Jack-built' methods in order to acquire power. Let us manfully stand up and say, 'Mr. President, we ought to have more power. We need more power.' The way to obtain it is by consulting the states (through a constitutional amendment)."

It is especially significant, therefore, that dispatches from Washington now quote the Arizona Senator as promising his support of the proposed enlargement of the Court. Unless he is persuaded this present proposal does not intend in fact to "pack" the Court, it would appear the President's prestige and popularity are likely to overbalance any congressional scruples hitherto entertained.

RIVER CITIES

After human ingenuity has exhausted itself in devising schemes for the defeat of river floods, it may turn out that the best scheme, which calls for no ingenuity at all, and entails no expense, is the simple one of building cities beyond the rivers' reach.

The early settlers established their homes and their places of business close to the rivers from real necessity. Overland roads being either non-existent or for a large part of the year impassable, the rivers were the only dependable avenues of travel.

But the great cities, growing and spreading around those original nuclei, still remained in the river bottoms when the reasons for their occasionally dangerous location there had ceased to have force. Today river traffic is a negligible part of our transportation. Few persons rely on it, and those who do can reach the water side easily from a distance by hard roads. With no detriment whatever to business or pleasure, cities could be stationed on high ground half a mile, a mile, or five miles from the rivers, where they would be safe from floods even twice as great as the present one.

As long as streams appear to be unmanageable, why expose ourselves to them? The cost of removing rich river cities farther inland—at this time when they are virtually wiped out—would be trifling in comparison with that of furnishing unreliable protections for them where they are, and of rebuilding them there periodically after each successive destruction.

Dear Friends:

Many a woman mourns plaintively because her husband refuses to eat all of the lettuce around his salad. "You simply must eat it. Lettuce is so good for you."

Yet when she is urging lettuce for health's sake, this same conscientious homemaker would be greatly surprised if she were told that she already has thrown away the very best part of her husband's salad dish.

In the natural desire to serve a dainty, crisp salad, the average cook automatically trims the lettuce, discarding most of the outer green leaves. Into the garbage can go the green leaves, rich in vitamins, nourishing and healthful.

For no less an authority than the Bureau of Home Economics in Washington now comes forth with a bulletin declaring that the outer green lettuce leaves are more than 30 times as rich in Vitamin A as the inside heart.

The importance of salads on the Winter menu cannot be over-estimated, particularly when some of the root vegetables, such as yellow or white turnips, beets, or sweet potatoes are being served, or to offset the starchy content of macaroni, spaghetti or noodles.

If you have one or two extra beets remaining from the first night's hot dish, place them in a bowl with diluted vinegar and seasonings and a hard-boiled egg to slice with salad greens for the following day's luncheon or dinner.

Don't overlook the sunshine content of raw carrots. The tiny ones are delicious scraped and diced in a raw vegetable salad. The busy cook may well win extra "sunshine" by munching a section of raw carrot while she prepares the meal.

Salads are another invitation to the clever cook's ingenuity. If a mixed salad is served attractively in a wooden or pottery bowl, she may combine that left-over dab of cold macaroni with sliced tomatoes, hard-boiled egg, diced celery, raw carrot, fresh greens and French dressing. Left-over green peas, lima or green beans cheer any salad.

Instead of serving Roquefort cheese and crackers "on the side," crumble a little cheese directly in your salad. Or add sliced stuffed olives for variety.

Creamed cottage cheese is a health builder and it combines excellently with fresh or cooked vegetables, as well as with different varieties of fruit salad.

Did you ever try a chilled salad with a center mound of cottage cheese, sprinkled with chopped nuts and trimmed with pimiento strips, and ringed with crisp slices of cucumber? Stuffed olives may be substituted for the pimiento.

Youngsters who balk at other salads seldom pass up cottage cheese with chopped nuts and sliced pineapple, or stuffed prunes or dates, with a center mound of cream cheese, or cottage cheese. Diced green peppers are a tasty accompaniment to creamed cottage cheese. For vegetable salads, the cheese can be snapped up with horse-radish.

And of course, this isn't mentioning the hundred and one variations of the attractive and nourishing gelatine salad.

CROWN BORNICE "CHAMP"
POOL SHOOTER OF BRISTOL

Joseph Bornice was crowned the champion pool shooter of Bristol last night as he defeated Philip LaSalle, 125-78, in the finals of the local tournament which was opened to all comers. Bornice will receive the trophy donated by the St. Ann's Athletic Association, sponsor of the tournament.

Over two hundred billiard fans crowded the St. Ann's club-house last night when the game got under way. Bornice quickly jumped into the lead when LaSalle broke and left a dead combination. Bornice cleaned up the rack and ran off fourteen and added one more to begin the second. At the close of the second frame, Bornice had the edge by a score of 21-6.

LaSalle did not gain his stride until the fifth rack when he made thirteen balls to shave Bornice's lead to 46-35. But the champion did not falter and regained his big margin by making a run of nine to have the score read: Bornice, 63; LaSalle, 41. At the intermission, Bornice had mounted an 82-50 lead.

From then on it was just a matter of time. LaSalle had a good run towards the finish but Bornice's run of nineteen stood out and gave him a comfortable edge.

Bornice also had the highest runs of the tourney. His run of twenty-one was high and he also had runs of twenty and twice nineteen. To win the tournament, Bornice beat Nick Gillardi, Eugene Squillace, Otto Manera and LaSalle.

total listed at this point. Twenty-four per cent of the collisions happened on straight stretches of rural highway, 23 percent between intersections in cities and towns, 12 percent on curves, 6 percent on hills and 5 percent at rural intersections.

Increased use of the highways as indicated by increased motor vehicle registration and gasoline consumption is reflected in the increase in the total number of accidents which occurred in 1936. The total for the year was 55,727 motor vehicle accidents against 52,157 in 1934 and 49,930 in 1935.

The figures indicate, however, a marked increase in the severity of accidents as shown by a sharp rise in the death rate and in the estimated damage to vehicles and other property.

Even Hagen Fails—Sometimes

Walter Hagen, one of the golf immortals, is shown on a Los Angeles course, displaying excellent form in an explosion shot out of a bunker, the ball bounced into the air—and settled at Hagen's feet, still in the sand. Golfers will know how Walter felt.

The deaths for the year totaled 2,411, an increase of 524 over the preceding year while the property damage totaled $7,948,900, an increase of one million dollars over 1935.

The numbers of operators figuring in accidents during the past year totaled 91,055. All of the operators with the exception of 5,049 were residents of Pennsylvania. Ninety-one per cent of the drivers indicated in their reports that they had at least one year's experience.

An analysis of the condition of the operators shows that 74 percent of those involved in accidents were apparently normal. Of the others, 16 percent were inattentive, 4 percent confused, 3 per cent were driving with an obstructed view, and 2 percent were apparently intoxicated.

Fifty-nine per cent of the operators involved in accidents were apparently driving with due respect for the law. Fifteen per cent were driving too fast for conditions, 9 percent were operating on the wrong side of the road, 3 percent were accused of cutting in front of other vehicles, 2 percent failed to signal and 2 percent failed to stop at a "stop sign."

As one sits in a trailer and thinks of the opportunities offered for travel and cheap lodging, one's feet begin to itch, and there is the temptation to "hit the road."

Life in a trailer must be interesting as one goes from place to place with never a thought as to trouble in obtaining hotel accommodations, not to say anything about the expense.

"WHERE DID YOU GET IT?"

SOMETIMES, in a friend's house, you see a certain particularly handsome rug or lamp, a new vacuum cleaner, an attractive chair or table. Or perhaps it's a new coat or dress, or some delicious new food-product.

You ask: "Where did you get it?"

Your friend says: "I got it at Blanks."

You don't ask: "How did you know Blank's had it?" There is no need to ask; there is no mystery about that. You know your friend reads the advertisements in this paper. You merely sigh enviously, and think: "I must have missed reading the ads that day."

Make it a habit to read the advertising pages of this newspaper regularly, carefully.

One cannot help but think of the threat the trailer life holds for every established community. How long will it be before trailer colonies will be universal? Folks will move from place to place, secure employment, live in trailers while employed in a community, then move on. No taxes, spending little or nothing in the municipality, but taking all or most all of their earnings out!
